

The story of You and I

(Verse 1:)

Lights in the sky are shining mysteriously.

One lights up, but never for eternity.

Heavenly fire is burning in my blood.

You walked away after you light it up.

I now know what it's like to be a witness of love and I do know that it's my own damn fault

and I messed it up.

So I sit here in my room,

tears are running down my face

and I scream into my pillowcase.

I looked for love

never thought that you still owned that part of my heart.

(Chorus:)

Every tear that I cry

tells the story of you and I

with actors that are

stupid and helpless.

How can I feel like

loosing you without having you?

When will I start healing

to stop that feeling?

(Verse 2:)

I saw your eyes sparkling whenever you saw me.

Now I can see that you lost me.

My lips formed words I thought would never say.

I didn't mean them anyway.

Have you planned on fighting about me,

or are you going to give up so easily?

I was already planning our future just you and me,

never thought anything could stop us,

but then hit reality.

I looked for love, never thought that you still owned that part of my heart.

(Chorus:)

Every tear that I cry
tells the story of you and I
with actors that are
stupid and helpless.
How can I feel like
loosing you without having you?
When will I start healing
to stop that feeling?
